For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. He led a bombing attack with the utmost determination, and after a fight lasting for four hours, ejected the enemy from the trenches. He showed great courage and determination.

Lt. Francis Stanley Symondson, Yeo. and R.A.F.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. In two months he destroyed five enemy machines and one enemy kite balloon.

Rev. Charles Douglas Symons, Army Chaplains' Dept.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. During an intense bombardment of the area he rendered invaluable aid in assisting to remove men and animals during the evacuation of the section lines. During the retirement under shell and machine-gun fire he helped to get the wounded to safety, his personal courage and disregard of danger being an example to all.

Capt. Frederick William Synnott, R. Dub. Fus., Spec. Res.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty during ten days of active operations in command of an entrenching battalion. On one occasion, when his flank became exposed through the withdrawal of troops on his right, he made repeated efforts to re-establish touch, capturing several prisoners and sending back valuable information. Later, he led two companies into a village under heavy shell and rifle fire and re-established a line which had temporarily given way. His courage and energy were most marked, and he set a splendid example, and showed great power of leadership, even when suffering from severe physical and mental exhaustion.

2nd Lt. (A./Capt.) Archibald Tapster, Linc. R.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. For twenty-six hours he beat off a rapid succession of enemy attacks, personally placing a Lewis gun and a party of rifles to protect his exposed flank. He set a fine example throughout.

T./2nd Lt. Gilbert Ruskin Tarry, E. Surr. R.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. This officer commanded one of the leading platoons in an attack on a village. When it was checked by several strong points, he rallied the remainder of the platoon, and all men near him, and organised them into small parties, again and again attacking. By his personal courage and example he undoubtedly materially assisted the following waves to approach, and eventually to drive the enemy out.

2nd Lt. Basil George Taylor, S. Lan. R.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. He reconnoitred a farmhouse in the enemy lines over 100 yards away to ascertain whether the enemy were concentrating. Twice he had to retire owing to enemy patrols firing on him, but eventually returned with information which enabled his battalion to successfully repel an attack which the enemy made during the night.

T./2nd Lt. George Henry Taylor, M.M., Yorks. L.I.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. Having been detailed to command a raiding party, he proceeded to reconnoitre the ground in the vicinity of the enemy's post with great assiduity for two nights previous to the appointed date, giving every information to the artillery and trench-mortar officers necessary to ensure the accuracy of the barrage fire. When the raid took place he dashed forward with his men directly the barrage lifted, leading them with great gallantry over the enemy's wire; he surprised the garrison, taking a prisoner and killing the remainder. His coolness and composure during the operation were most marked, and his example had an excellent effect on the whole party, whom he brought back without casualties fifteen minutes after the raid started.

T./Lt. Leslie Francis Taylor, K.R. Rif. Corps.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. He brought a machine gun and team into a position which enfiladed the enemy's attack, and, driving them back, caused their capture by another party. His section then remained in position on a railway embankment, preventing any penetration by the enemy.

Capt. William Taylor, R.A.M.C.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty in his work amongst the batteries. He remained to the very last in each position, attending to the wounded officers and men, and was untiring in his efforts to assist in every way.

T./Lt. William Taylor, R.F.A.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. This officer, as field observation officer for the brigade, did excellent work during a preliminary gas bombardment and subsequent infantry attack, going out personally to see to the mending of his lines under high explosive and gas shells. He remained at the observation post after the garrison had withdrawn, and he was at last driven out by machine-gun fire. Later, after being severely wounded, and dressed, he returned to take charge of the battery until the Captain arrived, all the other officers having become casualties.

T./2nd Lt. Harold John Perdu Teague, M.G. Corps.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. He moved his guns forward under heavy machine-gun fire, and engaged some enemy machine guns, thus greatly assisting other troops. Later, he was able to get direct fire on the attacking enemy, which caused severe losses in their ranks. His cheerfulness and devotion to duty set a fine example to his men.
